I am trying to submit a CLang executable for Xcode build, without building it. Is it possible? I would like to keep all the tests that the build fails. Do I have to build my executable before submitting it? A: You can manually submit your project, as long as it has a main target. Just go to your project navigator, right click the project, choose Show Package Contents. Inside build, you can find the build scheme. In the default scheme, the main target has Build action: Custom. The build scheme properties has Configuration: Release. You need to change this Build configuration to one that actually builds your executable. For example: Click the Build Phases tab, find your executable and edit it. Change Build Configuration to Debug. Save the scheme. You can build your
